Oh, they finally replaced
that other one!

Is this your first time in the countryside, little guy?

nods

Aww, how cute! He still understands words!

Leilei, a pet assigned as a Public Relief, has recently been re-located. Although he has previous experience, it's his first time being away from the city where he served alongside other Public Relief Pets. Here, will be the only one available to the local population for the foreseeable future

He won't soon enough, I'm sure.

You're panting just from this,
pet? Are you still really that sensitive?

It's cute how responsive he is!

He must be either new or at least pretty resilient, right?

Great, we actually get to break this one ourselves for a change!!

Pets in general can only communicate via small gestures, as both their ability to speak and move freely is taken away from them as standard procedure. Some become completely unresponsive after years of service, as if unable to understand the language. It's believed that after getting used to their roles, their brain just forgets most stuff unrelated to their job, language included.

Is he... moaning?

Yeah, I think he is!!

Your name is Leilei, right?

Tell me, Leilei, do you like when I rub my cock in your clit like that?

nods nods nods

Awwn, what a good boy!

Ooooooh, he's one of THOSE!

Should we keep him like that or try to break him further??

Does it matter?

Let's just enjoy him, what happens, happens.
