

S4DSQU1D

squ1d.moe/gate

[PET ROUTE]

INFERNA

ALL CHARACTERS ARE CONSENTING, ADULT ACTORS PLAYING A RÔLE

AMON'S DIARY

Everything on this book is 100% fictional, no living being (human or otherwise) was harmed when drawing or writing these situations. All characters are over 18 and none of them are based off any real person. Do not ever try to reproduce any of the things depicted on this page in real life. The immoral acts and/or dialogue of these fictional characters are not a representation of the author's actual beliefs.

IF YOU THINK ANY OF THE THEMES DESCRIBED BELOW WILL CAUSE YOU ANY LEVEL OF DISTRESS, PLEASE DO NOT READ IT

CONTENT WARNINGS:

Fictional depictions of:

noncon | tmpreg | sexual slavery | dehumanization | birth (egg-like) | pee | xray | large insertion | size difference | angel x demon | piercings | uterine penetration | mindbreak | breast expansion | lactation | breastfeeding | gore (mild blood and from birth)

S4DSQU1D

After putting it off for so long, I have finally decided to get my own pet angel. Working as a trainer for government-owned pets, I already have plenty of experience with raising and taking care of them, so even if domestic pets are a bit different, I am confident I won't run into too many problems.

At the end of the day, pets are all the same, no matter who owns them. Their bodies are similar to angels, but unlike actual angels, they have no soul to speak of. The difference is very noticeable once you actually interact with a pet, their behavior does not resemble that of an actual person. The government of Inferna uses them for both entertainment, which is the type of pet I usually handle, and milk farming. Domestic pets are used as companions, sexual relief, and for reproduction.

Typically, most of us demons get our first one in our early twenties, but for me, time went by, and I never cared to do that. I'm not exactly sure of why myself, to be completely honest. It's normal for angels to not have pets, even if they live in the North like us (pets aren't allowed entry in the South, where most angels live), but for a demon to not have one when pushing 30? It's seen as extremely weird.

I think that dealing with them all day long already fulfilled that need, even if they weren't mine. After all, while at work I am directly responsible for many of them, and through the years most trainers do develop some attachment. How could I not? They're just too cute!

Maybe because, unlike most of my peers, I didn't have a pet of my own, the feeling of attachment to random Public Relief Pets I was in charge of ended up being a bit stronger at times. Perhaps I end up crossing lines I shouldn't in that regard at times. At least, it's what my coworkers say. Regardless of my personal feelings, this never caused me any trouble aside from making me sad after a pet is relocated or dies. My work is excellent, and the results my methods get are undeniable!

But none of that matters now! Because finally, I do have a pet! His given name seems to have been Soleil, but I've decided to just call him Sol. It's important to change their names, that way they will disconnect from their old lives, where they were forced to live as a person despite their true nature, more easily. However, I also believe choosing something similar helps their training process. They probably already had to face a bunch of changes and scary procedures just to get here, a bit of familiarity should provide a bit of comfort in such a scary situation.

it's all about balance!